GEORGE SHEARING QUINTETT TO APPEAR IN CONCERT NOV. 2 AT RUMFORD

Some of the smoothest musical sounds ever to be heard in Rumford will be very much in evidence in the Muskie Auditorium on Wednesday, Nov. 2, when the Community Concert Association President Alphonse Mercier introduces the world famous George Shearing Quintet. The ensemble includes the pianist-composer and four other outstanding musicians on guitar, string bass, drums and vibraphone.

London-born George Shearing has created an international reputation for his musical talent as pianist, arranger, and composer. Equally at home on the classical concert stage as on the jazz nightclub stand, consistently compelling in solo performance, Shearing is recognized for his inventive, orchestrated jazz.

George Shearing

Off stage as well, Shearing is a dedicated musician. His compositions, which number more than one hundred, have produced works like "Ballad of Birdland" which has become a jazz standard. As an educator, he has devoted many summers to teaching jazz techniques, arrangement, ensemble playing both at the famed University of Utah Workshop and the re-

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

Residents are reminded that overnight on-street parking is prohibited from Nov. 1, 1977, to April 1, 1978. This policy is effective next Tuesday night, Nov. 1.

A bill enabling municipal agents to register new automobiles and pick-ups under 6,000 GVW went into effect Oct. 24, 1977. The Motor Vehicle Division of the Secretary of State's Office does not anticipate implementation of this law in the near future. The reason being that municipal agents are not prepared to collect sales tax, issue motor license plates, or process title applications which are necessary for issuing new registrations. The Town of Bethel will continue to re-register automobiles, motorcycles, and pick-up trucks with less than 6,000 GVW.

Absentee ballots for the Dec. 5, 1977 election are now available at the Town Office. Voters who will be away Dec. 5 are urged to come into the Town Office to vote by absentee ballot prior to leaving town. Eight referendum questions and the question of retaining or repealing the uniform property tax will be voted on at this election.

The Board of Selectmen met Monday evening Oct. 14 and acted on a long and varied agenda.

Kerry Hutchins, Tree Farm Forester with Boise Cascade, met with the Board to discuss the cutting of timber at the Town Farm. Mr. Hutchins informed the Board that a selective cutting program would be desirable at the Town Farm as trees in several sections are in bad shape. The Board decided to undertake a multi-year tree cutting program. It was decided that harvesting work would be put out to bid as a number of local residents had expressed an interest in undertaking the work. The Board directed the Manager to work with Mr. Hutchins to develop cutting guidelines and bid specifications which can be reviewed at the next Board meeting.

The Selectmen also met with the Water District Trustees to discuss current activities of the District. Topics discussed included: the EDA grant received by the District for upgrading mains to improve fire protection; installation of meters; flushing and testing of hydrants by the Fire Department; breaks; CETA employees; and District finances. A short executive session dealing with personnel issues was held with the Trustees. A report on the uniform tax in Maine was reported upon by Bro. Felt.

It was voted to accept the date of Aug. 1, for entertaining Oxford Pomona. This switch was made because of the energy situation in the month of February.

The program was built around Maine, so the Roll Call was the most beautiful place I have seen in Maine, which was well responded to by the audience. Miriam McAllister rendered "Dear Old Maine" in a solo. This was followed by a speaker, Louise Lincoln, a former representative in the legislature from District 63, and now serving on the board of the Committee for Maine's Future. She reported on the migration and integration of the people living in Maine and those outside who wish to return to Maine, which many are doing, to retire. This was followed by a poem on Maine written by Ruth Hanscom, class of '38 which was very appropriate for the occasion. A song "Count Your Blessings" closed the meeting.

FIRST GRADE PARENTS NIGHT HELD AT ETHEL BISBEE SCHOOL

First grade parents night was held at the Ethel Bisbee School, Wednesday evening, Oct. 19, with approximately 50 parents and guests attending.

Staff present were Mrs. Nancy Davis, teaching principal of Ethel Bisbee School, and Cliff Wing, elementary supervisor of M. S. A. D. #44.

Mrs. Mary Jane Gaudreau and Mrs. Caroline Gould, the two first grade teachers, explained to those present what a day in first grade is like. The Ginn reading program was explained in detail and a film strip, reinforcing what the teachers had explained was shown.

The math program and the new social studies and science programs were demonstrated, showing the parents the equipment that is available for the teachers to teach specific units. Future plans for field trips were explained, as was the use of teacher aides and the daily routine of a first grader.

Those attending should now know what their first grader does all day at school and hopefully the parents will have a better understanding of work sent home by the pupil.

After refreshments, the teachers answered any questions the parents had in a short question and answer period.

to further review the documents. The next regular meeting of the Selectmen will be Monday night, Nov. 14.

On Tuesday night, October 25, the State Dept. of Transportation held a public hearing at the Fire Station concerning the up-grading of the Ferry Road Railroad crossing and the discontinuance of the Cemetery and Smith crossings. Representatives from the State and National Railroad, the State, and the Town spoke in favor of the proposed action. A number of local residents were present, some of whom opposed the proposed action and some supported the proposed action.

A number of concerns were expressed including problems in snow removal at the crossings, problems with signals, road grades at the crossings, traffic at the Ferry Road crossing, and the personal inconvenience that would be caused by the closing of the Smith crossing.

The Department of Transportation will be reviewing the information presented and will be making a decision in the near future, by Norman R. Ness, Jr.

JAY DAMPENS TELSTAR'S HOMECOMING 32-8

by Greg Roberts

Jay destroyed Telstar Saturday 32-8. Although the game was played in the sun for the first time in a while, there was no sunshine on the playing field.

In the first quarter Telstar kicked to Jay where two plays later Quarterback Peter Ouellette scored from his 46 on a booter for the score. Telstar got the ball on the kick-off and ran into a stone-wall, going nowhere. Jay took the full again and marched downfield in 11 plays for the score with Ouellette scoring from the four. Like the score before Jay could not get the conversion in for the two points.

Ouellette came back to haunt the Rebels, hitting Tom Ouellette with a 40 yard touchdown pass to expand the Tigers lead to 20-0. Again no-go on the conversion try. Third quarter action was played as if the score was 0-0, neither team could move the ball any more. The most interesting thing that happened was the performance of the Rebel cheerleaders. They are the best girls in the conference.

In the fourth quarter Jay struck again with guess who sprinting 80 yards for the score. Ouellette also ran in the two point conversion. Late in the quarter Telstar avoided the shutout by piecing together a drive downfield polished off by Glenn Dunn rolling in for the score. Mike Brooks ran in the conversion to make the final score 32-8.

Telstar falls to 3-4 and plays away at Massabesicke Saturday. Unbeaten Jay takes on unbeaten rival Madison in the MVC battle of the season.

named Chataqua Institution. As a student, George studies classical performance since Mozart is a favorite and practices, practices, practices!

A popular television personality also, the Shearing wit has captivated audiences on the "Today," "Tonight," "David Frost," "Mike Douglas," "Merv Griffin" and Dick Cavett shows.

George Albert Shearing was born on Aug. 13, 1919, in the Battersea area of London. Congenitally blind, he was the youngest of nine children of coalman James Phillip Shearing. George discovered his piano talent when he found he could duplicate the tunes from the old crystal set on the piano. His only formal musical education consisted of four years of study at the London Lodge School for the Blind. While his talent won him a number of university scholarships, he was forced to refuse them in favor of a more financially productive position: a piano player in a neighborhood pub. After a series of similar club dates, George joined an all-blind band in the 1930s, a short-lived project sponsored by the National Institute for the Blind. At this point George developed a friendship with the noted jazz critic Leonard Feather and through this contact made his first appearance on BBC radio. He also cut his first record, "Squeezing the Blues," playing accordion to Feather's piano accompaniment.

An important recent highlight in the artist's career was his return with the Quintet to Europe for a tour during March and April, 1976. It was Shearing's first such tour in 14 years, and his return was greeted with great enthusiasm by audiences everywhere. Starting in Copenhagen, the tour in order of cities visited, included Malmö, London, Edinburgh, Amsterdam, Cologne, Zurich, Berlin, Stuttgart, Hamburg, Hannover, Frankfurt, Hilversum and Rotterdam. The varying schedule embraced performances in concert halls, in new leading hotels, on state radio stations, and the TV camera eye caught him "live" and for taping in some instances. Shearing also spent three days in Stuttgart for recording sessions.

During his London stay Shearing appeared on a radio-call-in program. One listener rang the station to inform the artist that her grandmother was still the proud owner of the first piano on which Shearing ever played.

He is particularly proud of his appearance in a 30-minute documentary TV film made for Public Broadcasting System, the subject of which was Guide Dogs for the Blind. Entitled "Out of the Shadows into the Sun," the program was filmed in July of 1975 and first broadcast the following November. With music and narration by Shearing, the program won high critical acclaim and is now receiving sales on the international market. When the artist returned from his European tour he was delighted to be informed that the show had received nominations for Emmy Awards, including one for him as composer of the "best music."

For more than a decade his passion for classical music has peaked. Although the first performed a classical concert in 1952 with the Rochester Philharmonic, since 1963 he has performed many concerts as soloist with symphony orchestras in Cincinnati, Baltimore, Nashville, Denver, Buffalo, Detroit and Flint.

A notable event took place on May 24, 1976. Shearing's talents were saluted with an Honorary Doctorate of Music from Westminster College in Salt Lake City, Utah, in a ceremony which similarly honored Edward Heath, former Prime Minister of the United Kingdom.

Shearing's keyboard reputation flourished through engagements in top London Supper Clubs and as a popular guest on the BBC. While still in his twenties, he landed a recording contract with Decca Records, and became one of the top selling artists in Britain. In 1941 George won first popularity poll victory from Melody Maker's Magazine, and for the next seven years dominated British jazz polls. In 1941 he married Thelma Bayes whom he had met while playing to Londoners huddled in an air raid shelter during a bombing blitz.

In 1947 Shearing, his wife and five-year-old daughter moved to America where he spent two long years re-establishing his fame on this side of the Atlantic. His state-side reputation began rolling when he was booked into New York's Birdland, to which he later penned his famous "Lullaby." In 1949 the Shearing sound was firmly entrenched when he gathered a quintet featuring his distinctive blend of piano, bass, drums, guitar, and vibes to record "September in the

DEPT. OF PUBLIC SAFETY ADVISES SAFE INSTALLATION OF WOOD-BURNERS

The Maine Department of Public Safety cautions citizens there is more to supplementing the heating capability of a home with a wood-burning appliance than just connecting it to a chimney.

"Improper installation of wood fired stoves and heaters could result in increased — rather than reduced — consumption of fuel," said Col. Allan H. Weeks, Commissioner, Maine Department of Public Safety.

And according to Capt. Donald M. Bisset, State Fire Marshal, "There has been an increasingly number of costly and tragic fires caused by poorly installed and unsafe operation of wood-burning appliances."

Chimney Draft
Capt. Bisset said alteration in chimney draft, resulting from the connection of a wood-burning stove to a chimney already serving an oil-fired appliance, could easily result in uneven and wasteful consumption of fuel oil. All such conditions should be checked by a licensed oil burner technician to determine if the draft is proper to efficiently serve all appliances connected to a single chimney.

Used Stoves
Of extreme importance, the State Fire Marshal said, is a careful examination of used stoves of the water coil and water front type. Special care should be exercised to insure that the coils or fronts are not capped thereby capable of exploding with the velocity and similarity of a dynamite bomb when subjected to heat.

Overheating
Woodburning stoves, it should be stressed, have a prime reputation as a cause of fires involving loss of life in dwellings. They require constant attention. Left unattended, overheating results from lack of regulation of draft limiting devices. Changes in outdoor conditions which affect chimney draft also can occur at times when a stove is unattended, and an over-temperature situation from unattended burning may result.

No Liquid
Never, Capt. Bisset warned, should a solid fuel fire be "freshened" with a flammable or combustible liquid. Such a practice is another common cause of fatal fires and explosions.

Since stoves can become red hot, a minimum clearance of 36 inches must be maintained be-

YOUR BACK & YOUR HEALTH

Stephen Garbarini, D. C.

Catch back troubles when they're young

We who are parents try to do a good job of it. We provide clothes, warmth, food and love, and when the children are sick we do our best to help them.

There is one area of child care between them and surrounding combustible surfaces unless such surfaces are properly insulated.

Pipe Connections

Smoke pipes connecting stoves to chimneys should be made of not less than No. 24 gauge steel.

Chimneys

Defective chimneys are one of the leading causes of fires in buildings. A chimney can be inspected for flaws by lowering a flashlight on a string from the top or with a mirror poked into a connector and cleanout openings.

A chimney may have to be cleaned before the lining or interior brickwork can be examined. The cleaning of a chimney flue at least once a year is recommended. One of the ways a homeowner can do this is by lowering a bundle of fire chains from the top and scraping a side of the flue at a time in pulling the bundle back up.

Soot accumulations in chimneys not only restrict the area but are hazardous when they become ignited, resulting in the most common type of chimney fire.

Inspection of a chimney from the roof should take into consideration condition of the mortar, chimney lining and flashing. From the attic, check for cracks and loose mortar, particularly under the roof. On other floors, check connections and in the basement check again for cracks, loose mortar or evidence of settling. At connector openings, check the lining as far as it can be reached with the fingers.

If mortar has begun to fall out from between the bricks, openings may be expected to develop all the way through the wall. If an ice pick or other sharp instrument can be pushed all the way through, rebuilding is indicated. Chimney tops are the most likely portions to require rebuilding. When this is necessary, the chimney should be torn down to the point where full solid mortar joints are found at least 18 inches below the roof.

that is often sadly overlooked — not because we are negligent parents, but simply because we don't know about it.

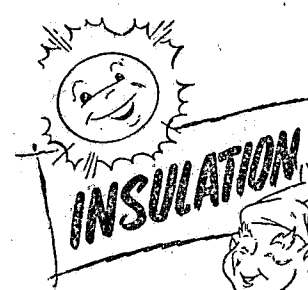

It's a natural activity for children to engage in lively play. Wrestling, jumping, falls and bruises are all part of growing up. What isn't well known is that the spill from the bike or the bump on the back may just seem to go away, only to show up years later as a more serious, and often different, health problem.

Obviously, you can't run with your child to a chiropractor every time the child falls. What then do you look for as a warning sign? Here are two.

First, have the child stand straight and relaxed. Compare the heights of the shoulders. If one shoulder is noticeably higher than the other, problems may very well exist.

Take a good look at the hem of your daughter's skirt. If it hangs crooked or if every new skirt you buy has to be altered on just one side, that's another definite warning sign.

If either of these conditions are present, make an appointment with a chiropractor for an examination of your child. A few moments of prevention now could mean a healthier adulthood.

SAVES ...

On heating bills in the winter ... plus makes your home cooler in the summer.

Think About It.

You're losing money if your home isn't insulated, energy, and therefore money, could be escaping right through your roof.

This is the reason for a new energy conservation program being launched through-out the country.

Its purpose is to reduce the amount of energy needed to heat and cool homes. It could also ease the burden of rising utility bills.

NORWAY

Greenwood City

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres. —

Summer has pulled her shrouds closer this week and now walks slowly over the edge of our world. Autumn has stretched lavishly across the land. Most days or nights, the gutters and eaves have rippled and gurgled with the rain waters. At times the rain stopped, the sun peeped out and we'd feel delighted. Everything became curiously still; struck into immobility. Then cold rain drops again, dark, unheeded clouds and a preview of winter blowing against my back. Leaves go where they will, as they ride with these autumn winds. Each one finds a dreamed-of place. The quiet ones may choose a hidden nook, a tree lined lane or a flowing brook. But the laughing, dancing ones, how they race the winds across fields, meadows and old trails that wander through the valley!

"And nimbly they whirl and caper, Wind-tossed at a lively pace, Till they gracefully take their final bow. And nestle deep in earth's embrace."

— Joy Belle Burgess

Autumn, this week, I have viewed from the road or my windows; too wet for forest journeys. The oaks and beeches now hold their places in tans and browns. I looked at them on the distant hills as I walked. I noticed among them a group of poplars tall and beautiful against the sky; swaying to the rhythm of the winds. Some times the yellow spires flickered with dancing light as if all alive. Not long ago they stood green, slender columns, now a flame of gold.

When I look about new vistas are now open. My eyes can reach farther and see beyond a row of maples and give me a broader scope. I can stand and get new meaning as I look at the rolling hills reaching to the far horizon.

Now is a time for holding in remembrance lovely keepsakes in our minds: the fall asters, a monarch butterfly unhurried in flight, join the fall migration, flaunting golden splendor, a flame of sumac and distant wreaths of smoke climbing into peaceful skies.

Item 1: Results of our appeal for wrecked cars has yielded several items. Thanks to all of you who responded. Before the snow flies there will be a training session for all BEARS, learning to use the newly acquired 10-ton Porta Power Extrication Tool.

Item 2: Last week end, Florence Merrill, Don Morin, Esther Sweet, and Arlene Greenleaf attended an extrication course in Dixfield. Arlene was granted her instructor's certificate and will be teaching the course sometime in the spring. She is very busy these days, taking night courses and coaching at Telstar, besides pulling ambulance duty.

Item 3: There have been one hundred thirty-six ambulance calls so far this year. Despite anything you may have heard, there is still a dire need for more volunteers to run the ambulance service on a 24-hour basis. Please re-evaluate your schedule and try to find the time to give 12 hours a month to your ambulance. If we had 120 volunteers, that's all each of us would be responsible for—one 12-hour shift per month. Please contact Arlene (824-2744), Lyn (4-2235), and get involved.

Item 4: Lyn will be approaching all the schools next month, to have the children take home and return to the school a survey sheet. This will provide the ambulance dispatchers with specific information about each household in the area covered by the Bethel Ambulance. Be on the lookout.

Smoke Alarms

Every one's talking about something that's sweeping the country and being featured in newspapers, magazines, and on radio and television. To look at one, a person might wonder what the excitement is all about, because it's rather small and unobtrusive. But fire protection and public safety officials are hoping every dwelling will have one or more installed.

It's called a smoke alarm, and it offers a measure of protection out of all proportion to its low cost, efficiency, and ease of installation. Considered the best form of fire warning for a family, a smoke alarm "discovers" a fire in its earliest stages. Smoke will be evident from a fire much sooner than heat, and will trigger the alarm waking sleeping occupants.

Two types of alarms are available. One is called the ionization detector and the other the photoelectric detector. Information on which to use and where to install them can be obtained from fire protection groups, fire departments, and consumer organizations. So join the rest of the country in a massive effort to reduce injuries and fatalities from fires. Install smoke detectors in YOUR home!

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at EARLY REAL ESTATE, 60 Main St., Bethel. Phone: 824-2122, 824-2578. We're here to help!
